How Your City Was Assessed

Online Application & Documentation

Cities submit an online assessment and supporting documentation to evaluate and validate their overall performance across 45 criteria.

Certification Report

Cities that submit an assessment will receive a report benchmarking their current state of practice and outlining a customized path for improvement.

Debrief Call

Cities will have the option to participate in a debrief call. The call will focus on the city's customized path for improvement and further explanation of audited responses.

ABOUT WHAT WORKS CITIES

What Works Cities helps local governments improve residents' lives by using data and evidence effectively to tackle pressing challenges.

Launched by Bloomberg Philanthropies in April 2015, What Works Cities helps local governments across the country improve residents' lives by using data and evidence effectively to tackle pressing challenges.

In its first three years, What Works Cities helped 100 cities use facts to better define problems and make progress in crucial areas, such as health and safety, homelessness, and blight. Those cities are home to more than 31 million residents and have combined budgets exceeding $104 billion.

What Works Cities has set the national standard of excellence for data-driven, well-managed local government: What Works Cities Certification. By aspiring toward Certification and implementing the program's best practices, cities across the country are more effectively delivering results for residents.

ABOUT CERTIFICATION

What Works Cities Certification is the national standard of excellence for data-driven, well-managed local government.

What Works Cities Certification Tiers

HOW DOES YOUR CITY MEASURE UP?

FOUNDATIONAL PRACTICES

A brief explanation of the 8 Foundational Practices.

Data Governance

The active presence of an authoritative body to lead and oversee data inventory in alignment with citywide technical, privacy, and strategic objectives.

Evaluation

Systematic assessments using standard research methods to help local governments gain insights into the design, implementation, or effects of a policy, program, or practice, and make continual improvements.

General Management

A strong foundation for the effective use of data and evidence to drive decision-making in local governments start: with the chief executive and local government leadership explicitly communicating and demonstrating to staff that governing with data and evidence is an organizational expectation.

Open Data

The practice of proactively making electronic data records publicly available - in whole or in part - and legally open without restriction on use or re-use. Included in this practice is the creation of sustainable open data systems that promote informed decision-making, transparency, and robust citizen engagement.

Performance & Analytic:

The practice of studying how to perform better and inserting those insights into the operational decision-making process, solving local government problems through performance management systems, and creating a culture of accountability.

Repurposino

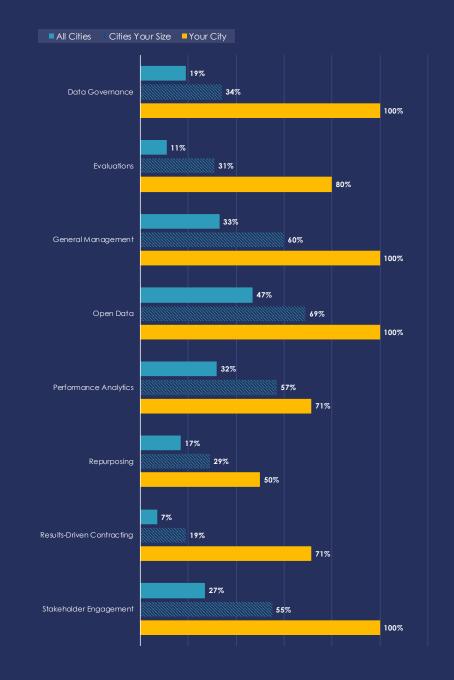

A strategic process that local governments use to shift funding and resources from ineffective programs and services, to those that are evidence-based and resident-focused.

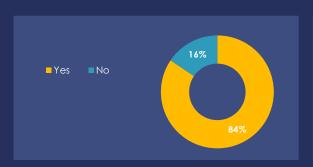

Results-Driven Contracting

A set of strategies to structure, evaluate, and actively manage contracts strategically, using data to help local governments leverage procurement as a tool to make progress on their highest priority goals.

Stakeholder Engagemen

The practice of facilitating opportunities for the community use of open data to solve pressing challenges, going beyond open data policies and portal.

NEXT STEPS

What Works Cities is committed to helping your local government's evidence-based decision-making progress from good to great.

The following recommended next steps should help pave the path to get there and ensure that your local government can continue to advance its practices and create better opportunities for its residents.

What Work Cities recommends the following next steps for your city:

1

Provide access to trainings for all local government staff on how to use data and evidence to make decisions.

What Works Cities Academy

All city staff have unlocked free access to the WWC Academy, hosted by the Center for Government Excellence at Johns Hopkins University. The Academy includes a suite of staff learning opportunities and resources that will accelerate your city's practices towards achieving, or advancing on, Certification.

Nominate a city representative to join our Certified Cities
Working Group

Certified Cities Working Group

For our top-performing cities, many next steps are technology and resource-heavy. We'd love the opportunity to talk with our Certified Cities and collaboratively identify the best next steps for you. The working group will also receive the unique opportunity to take a more hands-on approach in our criteria revision process, which is scheduled to release updated and new criteria to count toward 2022 Certification.

3

Require that new or renewed program are rigorously evaluated as a condition of funding.

What Works Cities Sprints

We recommend that you join the Evaluation Foundations Sprint facilitated by the Behavioral Insights Team starting on May 18, 2020.
